SOURCE Puna.SCORE FAILURE OF ALBANIAN MINERS' SCHOOL

During the 1951 - 1952 school year, night schools have been organized in virtually all mines, factories, and other enterprises of the Albanian People's Republic. Nevertheless, at the Krrabe chrome mine, months passed before a workers' night school was made available. A disappointingly low number of workers registered for the classes, and the school has been functioning poorly. It has no fixed meeting place, lacks heat and other comforts, and is short of textbooks and other school supplies. Accordingly, workers complained about this situation, stating that the classes were largely a waste of time.

Responsibility for the failure of the Krrabe mine workers' night school must be charged to the directorate of the mine, the professional committee, and the Education Section of the Executive Committee of Tirana Rreth. They have failed to provide adequately for raising the cultural and professional level of the workers. If it was possible to organize and conduct an efficient night school at the Selenice mine, there is no good reason why those responsible cannot do likewise at the Krrabe mine.
